Johnson followed in similar s.c. on. fewin next appeared and treated the Convention to a pronounce a State-rights spooch, dilating also on the free-trade and hard-money planks of the platform, and claiming storm as the mission of the party. Ryland was next introduced. He spoke opposing double taxation, and in favor of regulating corporations. He attacked the reconstruction policy of Congress the land monopoly, third term and Chesarism, and pledged himself to retrenchment in public expenses, and to this end advocated a Convention to frame a numerical from the convention to frame a numerical from the convention to frame a numerical frame and the frame and t tion to frame a new State Constitution, and suggested measures of re-form in that direction. He made a tion to the public positions he had filled, and referred the delegates to sition to Mongolan inenigration, and claimed in return the support of the working classes. He advocated the abrogation of the Chinese treaty, and deprecated the opposition of convict labor to that of honest mechanics. He claimed he was man enough physically, to make the cansass, if nominated, and retired. His speech was amusingly egotistical throughout.

Balloting then convenced, and thu seventh resulted as follows: Find-ley, 75; Johnson, 10; Ryland, 53; Irwin, 193.

Irwin was therefore declared duly nominated for Chivernon-
